Animalia

The academic world was astounded to learn that four rabbits had found their way into the stacks of the University of Toronto library a while ago. The beasts were obviously searching for knowledge because when properly incarcerated in a cabinet of the caretaker's quarters, they made every attempt at breaking out and returning to browse among the tomes. No one knows where the beasts came from; the Psychology department won't talk; the Medical Faculty disclaims all knowledge. Meanwhile rumours are rife that the long-eared creatures are working for a Ph.D. The rabbits themselves refused all interviews to the press.

When news of this reached Hamilton, the animal world there sent a delegate named Nosed to invade the McMaster's library. Nosed is a dog, and, we may say, a very intelligent dog. He wandered through the French room, he went into the reading room and scanned a few volumes of Virgil (very classical tastes for a beast) and then loped delicately into the ladies' reading room. The inanity of the conversation he heard there must have convinced him that there is little to an academic training which admits these mundane feminine creatures. So Nosed walked out.

Legal Action

The Supreme Moot Court at Dalhousie has been trying cases and cases lately. Why, only the other day the legal savants of the "college by the sea" upheld the lower courts' decision for the plaintiff in the libel case of Princess Youssouf-poff vs. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. In case you don't remember the case, it was a rather unsavoury bit of libel action that took place more than a year ago. Mr. Louis B. Mayer could not be contacted, but several filmland cognoscenties, reported he was greatly upset. And yet, only last year, the Supreme Moot Court at Dalhousie reversed the lower courts' decision. It would seem that Dalhousie justice is not only blind, but fickle.

Footloose Professors

The late Richard Halliburton and Gordon Sinclair were stay-at-homes compared to the professors at the University of Western Ontario. Western's extension department covers nineteen Ontario towns, and every so often the profs are sent on treks through the Lake Huron jungle to bring knowledge and civilization to the little towns from Welland to Owen Sound. Braving all the dangers and hardships of long overland voyages, these heroic academicians address little knots of six hundred or so white men on such subjects as history, economics, psychology and public health. Dr. Maine, head of the extension department, is pretty proud of his little band of knowledge missionaries. He says they lift the University out of the category of a class institution, and that it brings its services to the people on whom it depends for support. And who knows but he's right?

On Active Service

With C.O.T.C. enrolment reaching unprecedented heights, with every college paper bristling with the names of its alumni who have mobilized for special service during the war, what are the women doing? Frankly, they're doing a great deal. Co-eds on most campuses have

Red Cross Inaugurates Campaign for $3,000,000 In Its Mission of Mercy

Canadian Funds to Be Used for Country's Soldiers

With its motto "Alleviation of Human Suffering" and a National objective of $3,000,000, the Red Cross yesterday began its nation wide campaign for funds to carry on its mission of mercy both here and overseas. Two-thirds of the national objective is needed for wartime service, while the rest is needed to carry on its regular program of constructive work.

The Society has already committed itself to the extent of $400,000, of which $250,000 is for a hospital to be built in England, and the rest is for supplies needed in the daily round of the next eight months. As far as possible funds collected in Canada will be used for Canadian soldiers.

Under the joint chairmanship of Messrs. R. J. Jelliff and J. Henri Labelle, the Campaign will wind up its activities on November 21st. A number of members of the staff and friends of the University are interested in the campaign and it is expected that during the progress of the drive a number of McGill students will be canvassed.

Compared to the work done in the last war the foregoing figures seem trifling, an executive of the drive stated last night. In the Great War, Canada alone gave through the Red Cross $35,000,000, some in cash and some in kind. The Society sent 200 ambulances; it built and equipped hospitals, perhaps the most famous of which was the one at Vincennes which was later turned over to the French Government; it provided recreation centres and clothing for the troops. One of the most interesting services performed by the Society was instituting an Information Bureau. This both took care of imprisoned soldiers and informed relatives of their whereabouts.

The government relies on the Red Cross in time of war, as it supplies material needs and services to the Canadian forces. In addition to the

NEWMAN CLUB HEARS FATHER W. X. BRYAN

Reverend Father W. X. Bryan, professor of Philosophy at Loyola College, will be the guest of the Newman Club on Sunday next when he addresses the regular meeting of this group. The meeting will follow Mass and breakfast held at 10 a.m. in Congress Hall, 464 Dorchester St. W.

Father Bryan, already known to some of the members by reason of past visits, will discuss Catholic philosophy.

Friday night the club members will hold a duplicate bridge in the Union Reading Room. The executive explains that the procedure of duplicate bridge will be explained before the match so that no member need stay away because he or she has not played before.

DISCUSS 'WAR AND MORALIST'

Philosophers Meet in Union Music Room

Executive Extends Special Invitation to Beginners in Philosophy

Is a man ever justified ethically to take part in a war? If so, under what circumstances? If not, why not? These are a few of the questions that will be dealt with tonight at 8.15 by Mary Stewart when she opens the discussion of the position of the moralist in time of war at the first meeting of the Philosophical Society in the Union Music Room. Her address is entitled "War and the Moralist."

In having a student open the discussion at the first meeting of the club the executive, a member pointed out, is carrying out one of its chief aims, to provide for the student studying philosophy a medium for airing his views on topics that cannot be discussed informally or at length in the classroom or even at conferences. Further, in selecting as the subject for discussion the moralist position in time of war, he added, the executive feels that it is providing a subject not merely significant in the light of the present situation but also one that beginners in philosophy should have no difficulty to understand or join in discussing.

Immediately after the address the meeting will be thrown open for general discussion and later in the evening refreshments will be served. A brief discussion of general business and the club's plans for the year will take up the first part of the evening. All students interested in the topic to be discussed tonight, particularly beginners, are invited to attend the meeting, the executive stated.

Psychological and Biological Societies Sponsor Meeting

The first meeting of the Psychological Society this year will be held this evening in conjunction with the Biological Society, in the Union Ballroom at eight o'clock.

Dr. Robert Faris will approach the question of what extent the locality of residence in metropolitan areas influences human personality in discussing the relationship between the district of residence and the frequency of the type of mental breakdown found in various areas of the city. The talk will be illustrated by slides, and it was announced by the executive that discussion will be welcomed after the talk.

Dr. Faris believes that normal communication, that is to say, that normal social relations are essential for normal mental development, and offers as an example of this point the case of those who are in the habit of living in rooming houses. These people, existing sometimes in what might be considered as an atmosphere of seclusion, are apt to become addicted to silence, shut themselves up, will not speak to anyone and finally come to such a state that they neglect even to take care of themselves, he said. In conjunction with his study on this subject, Dr. Faris selected two American cities as examples—namely Chicago, Illinois, and Providence, R.I. He found in both cases that the results were astonishingly similar, that those who lived nearer to the city centre were more inclined to mental disorders than those who lived in the suburbs or on the outskirts of the city.

S.C.M. TO HEAR EX-SECRETARY

Semi-Annual Meeting to Be Held Tonight

'The War and Our Faith' to Be Subject of Rev. Dixon

Rev. Leonard A. Dixon, former General-Secretary of the Student Christian Movement in Toronto, will be guest speaker at the semi-annual meeting of the McGill S. C. M. tonight at 8 p.m. in Strathcona Hall. Dr. Dixon, who is at present Field Secretary of the Missionary Society of the Anglican Church, will take as his topic "The War and Our Faith."

After his graduation from Wycliff College, University of Toronto, Dr. Dixon worked in the Y. M. C. A. in India for nineteen years. He saw active service in the last great war, for which he was awarded the O. B. E. Since the war he has been Rector of St. James Church in Orillia, Ontario, and has done a great deal of S. C. M. work.

Following Dr. Dixon's talk, suggestions will be welcomed by the executive for plans for the season's program. All interested in the S. C. M. are invited to attend.

McGILL SPANISH CLUB

Latin-American Music and Songs Feature Program

Trying to make their first meeting as informal as possible, the executive of the Club Hispanico de McGill are planning to have Spanish music and Latin-American music and songs featured at their first open meeting, to be held on Thursday at 8.15 p.m. in the Union Grill Room.

At this meeting, which is the first of this year's monthly reunions, Dr. Jorge Guillen, new Head of the University's Spanish department, will speak briefly on "The Life and Customs of the Man in the Street in Spain."

Turney Shute To Be Head of McGill Players' Club Workshop

Director Will Concentrate First on Technique, Later On Actual Performances

This year the workshop division of the McGill Players' Club will be under the direction of Mr. Turney Shute, of the "Skena" group which is the graduate Players' Club, assisted by other members of Skena. Mr. Shute, one of the members said, is one of the few workshop directors who have had any training in the professional theatre, having spent the past summer acting at, and attending school of, the Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge, Massachusetts, one of the foremost summer theatres on the continent.

The Playhouse is under the direction of William Miles and Theodore Cloak, who have had experience in training people in the most up to date methods of the theatre. Ap

SOPH HOP SCHEDULED FOR UNION SATURDAY

The first of this year's "Sophomore Hops," informal, seventy-five cent dances held in the Union Ballroom for the purpose of supplementing the existing dances, will take place this Saturday night. Dancing to the rhythms of Archie Etienne's orchestra will take place from nine to one o'clock.

This affair is meant to be patterned after the week-end hops so popular at other universities. Far from being a dress up affair, sweat shirts or greifels will be acceptable, it is stated.

If this Sophomore hop is successful it will be followed by a series of similar events throughout the year. The purpose of these hops is to provide students of all years and most co-eds with an opportunity for informal dancing to a good orchestra. The price of tickets which is being kept as low as possible, is 75 cents per couple. Tickets may be obtained from class officers, from Bill Gentleman or the Union Tuck Shop.

FRESHETTES LOSE TO SECOND YEAR

Sophs Enter Semi-Finals for Women's Inter-Class Debating Trophy

Second year R.V.C. was one step nearer the women's debating trophy yesterday afternoon when they gained victory over the freshettes while upholding the negative side of "Resolved that the Principles of Modern Advertising should be Condemned." This debate, which was sponsored by the Women's Debating Society, is the first of a series to be held between the different years of R.V.C.

Marion Savage, the first speaker for the negative side, pointed out that there would be no newspapers if it were not for the advertising that covers their expenses, as the average man would be quite unwilling to pay the same price for his

DEBATERS' TOPIC IS CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

The Arts debate on the topic, "Resolved that Capital Punishment Should be Abolished," originally scheduled for today at 4 o'clock has been postponed till later in the week, according to A. L. Griffith, who is to act as chairman. The affirmative is to be upheld by Max Popovitch and Jack Riddle, and the negative by Lawrence Goddard and Brahm Battle.

This is to be the fourth in the preliminary series of Arts debates. Mr. Eugene Forsey, of the Department of Economics and Political Science, will act as judge for the whole series, in order to facilitate the selection of the best team from each class. After the preliminaries are completed, inter-class debates for the cup, and later interfaculty debates will be held. Interested students are welcome to attend any of these debates, it was announced.

REVUE APPEALS FOR CHORINES

Red and White Office Open in Union

Specialists in All Fields Are Asked to Register Now

Once again today the Executive Committee of the Red and White Revue will be on hand to interview prospective members of the chorus. It was stated last night. These meetings are primarily for the purpose of obtaining information on questions such as: height, previous dancing experience, if any, and on what days people are free to rehearse. Chorus rehearsals, before the final week or so amount to two hour long practices a week and most co-eds should be able to fit them in on their time-tables it was stated. Any time this afternoon the Committee will be in the Revue office in the Union basement to take the names of those who want to dance in the chorus and who missed Monday's opportunity.

Francois Johnson Chosen As Students' Spokesman

U. of M. Law Undergraduate to Tour Ontario Colleges

Following the Second Assises of Le Bloc Universitaire at Quebec it was announced by the National Executive of the Canadian Student Assembly that Francois Daniel Johnson, of the University of Montreal, had been elected to present the viewpoint of French-Canadian students before the English students of Ontario in a tour which will begin at Queen's University, Monday, November 20. Plans are thus completed on a project that was suggested some nine months ago at the C.S.A. Regional Conference at Ottawa.

"Quebec the Unknown" will be the title of his address as Monsieur Johnson carries from students of his own nationality the story of French Canada, her vivid history, and her attitude today to Canada and to the world. An opportunity to discuss the basis of national unity and of true nationhood for Canada, which has been the privilege of the few students who have attended French-English student conferences, is thus being extended to the student body of the universities which he will visit.

In the selection of Monsieur Johnson the French Canadian students have appointed one of the most outstanding undergraduates of their universities. While twenty-four years of age M. Johnson is in third year law, after having completed his classical course and two years of theology. Principal-Elect James Discusses Problems of Future Graduates

Addresses Luncheon of Commercial Undergraduates Society

"University men must prepare themselves to aid in solving the great problems facing the modern world" declared Professor F. C. James in an address before the Commercial Undergraduates Society Luncheon in the McGill Union yesterday. The principal-elect traced the different theories upon which Commerce schools have been founded, and presented his views on the matter, explaining his objectives, and the problems facing future graduates.

The first of such schools were founded to provide solely a technical training of a business nature, to train accountants and business managers efficiently. In this modern world a broader philosophy prevails, he said. Our community has not a set of clearly defined goals. We are living in a complex world. We are pioneers, and therefore we need more than mere technical experts, said the professor. Commerce students must also be students of the social sciences, must have an understanding of the major problems facing them, and be able to attempt an intelligent solution.

Defines Problems Prof. James defined some of the major problems, such as the pressing one of conflict between provincial and Federal governmental bodies over questions of authority. Canada being an integral part of the allied belligerent organization is faced with great economic expansion and with corresponding financial problems, all of which will require intelligent solutions.

He declared that the faculty was to be considered as fellow seekers after information, who are anxious to co-operate with students. McGill (Continued on Page Four)

Representatives Required From Each Faculty

Nominations for Faculty Representatives to the Students' Executive Council close on Thursday, November 23 at 2.30 p.m. These must be in writing and signed by at least ten undergraduate students from the Faculty which the Nominee wishes to represent. All students in their Junior Year may be nominated for the Faculties of Arts and Science, Engineering, Medicine, Law, Dentistry, School of Commerce, Theology, and the Royal Victoria College.

The elections will be held by the Undergraduates Societies of the Faculties on December 15th, 1939, nominations to be in the hands of the Secretary of the Students' Society, G. H. Fletcher, at the deadline.

Undergraduates Only Scarlet Key nominations will also close at the same time, Thursday, November 23, at 2.30 p.m. and must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Students' Society. The nominees must be undergraduates in good standing. For the purposes of the Scarlet Key Undergraduates in good standing are considered to mean all undergraduates except partial students, students on probation, and all students who are repeating their year.

The nominees are divided into two different sections, namely: Group "A" and Group "B". Those in Group "A" will include: Nominees in their Third Year, with the exception of the Faculty of Law, whose nominees will be in their Second Year.

There must be four or more nominees from the Faculties of Medicine, Engineering, Arts and Science; three or more from the

MEDICAL STUDENTS TO HEAR DR. PEDLEY

Subject of Lecture to Be 'Health Insurance in Scandinavia'

Dr. Frank G. Pedley, University Medical Officer, will address the Medical Distribution Group of CAMSI on "Health Insurance in Scandinavia" tomorrow night at 7.30 in Lecture room A of the Medical Building. Tomorrow's talk will be the third in a series on "The Distribution of Medical Care."

The series was begun by Dean Fleming who presented the group with an outline of the problems to be faced if we are to achieve a wider and more efficient distribution of medical care in Canada. Professor Marsh gave the next talk on "Health Insurance in Canada."

Dr. Pedley's talk will be based on first hand information gathered by the speaker on a recent trip to the Scandinavian countries.

Although the talks in the series form a co-ordinated whole, the committee in charge wish to emphasize that it is not necessary to have attended the previous meetings in order to follow tomorrow's talk. The meeting is open to all medical students.

Two National Conferences

Two events of major significance to every university student in Canada have been announced recently; the regular biennial conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students to be held in Ottawa, and the third National Conference of Canadian University Students, sponsored by the Canadian Student Assembly, at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, both during the Christmas holidays.

At the N.F.C.U.S. meeting, delegates from practically all of the official student governing bodies of Canadian colleges and universities will gather to determine the war-time policy of that organization until the following conference in 1941; among the items on the agenda will be war service, the Canadian University Press, intercollegiate debating (which has been suspended on account of the war), exchange scholarships, special student tours, youth hostels, and student co-operatives. Each delegate will be empowered to speak authoritatively for the student body which he represents; the conference will thus express the official opinions of student governments across Canada.

"National Unity and Education" has been announced as the theme of the Canadian Student Assembly conference which over 200 students are expected to attend. For five days, students representing many different groups—Newman Clubs, Social Problems Clubs, the Student Christian Movement, the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes, the Canadian University Press, and others—will live together and discuss with others the situation in their own particular province or campus. The C.S.A. was established at the last National Conference; one of the purposes of this year's meeting will probably be to discover how adequately it has been working, and how its program should be modified to suit present circumstances.

Two further points should be noted: both groups are stressing the importance of national unity at all times, and especially at the present; not only will delegates be present from Canada's English-speaking universities, but several students from the University of Montreal and Laval University in Quebec will attend to present the point of view of the French-speaking students.

Finally, it is of the utmost significance that each body has invited delegates of the other to attend its conference. So far, the functions of the N.F.C.U.S. and the C.S.A. have been separate; the older organization has provided many services for the students of Canada, while the younger has established local assemblies to plan last year's scholarship drive and to discuss various campus and social matters. While they have not conflicted so far, it seems to us to augur good for the future that each group is anxious to discover the aims and program of the other; from this beginning we can foresee greater co-operation between the two for the benefit of every Canadian student.

Red Cross Campaign

This week the Red Cross Society's nation-wide campaign for $3,000,000 is under way; McGill share of this has been set at $1,000.

There is little need to emphasize the importance of such a campaign. Present wartime conditions necessitate extra funds to extend the peace-time work of the Red Cross. The object of the campaign alone, "the alleviation of human suffering", merits our co-operation if we are to look forward to a world in which distress will be at a minimum.

McGill women have enlisted their aid in the Red Cross work; members of the R.V.C. unit have already contributed time and energy in various ways.

Canvassers will approach you for financial aid. The alleviation of human suffering is at stake; join in helping the Red Cross reach its objective.

THE R.V.C. ANGLE

It doesn't do to be too critical in this day and age, but we sometimes wonder. A handful of Toronto week-enders returned home this morning, all wearing that "death where is thy sting" look, and all in a state of mental collapse. Bursting with health we approached one of these girls. "Well, well," we said genially rubbing our hands together, "and how was Toronto?"

She looked at us with eyes that had definitely lost the fine glow of youth and replied in a faint voice, "I don't know. I didn't see him." With that she tottered off to bed.

Knock, knock, we said thoughtfully, and wandered off to a lecture.

The following incident probably was far from funny to those who experienced it. At five in the morning the tortured passengers in the day coach were aroused from their much-needed slumbers by the conductor, who rushed in and turned on the lights. "Lunch in ten minutes," he bawled. This amazing statement was met by a murderous roar of rage from the inhabitants of the day coach. At this the conductor lost his head and his temper. "You're not the boss," he shrieked in rapid French. "I'm not the boss. The boss is over there," indicating the dim distance with a shaking hand. With that he dashed out leaving the passengers to their own bitter thoughts.

That's what we like about the railways. Time and money. It means nothing to them.

The other day a friend of ours got herself into a fairly common predicament, which we think she handled in an unusual and admirable way. Upon getting into bed she managed to upset a bottle of ink over herself and the bed. Most people under these circumstances would have let out an agonized shriek, and dashed off to soak their garments in lemon or milk, or whatever it is people use to remove ink stains—but not this girl. She picked herself out of a puddle of ink in a gingerly fashion, and walked briskly into her next-door neighbour's room, where she was eyed with some astonishment.

"Doggone it," she remarked in the voice of one who has just witnessed the last straw breaking on the camel's back, from a ring-side seat, "what on earth am I going to do? I can't possibly afford to buy another bottle."

Here is another story from the day coach of the Toronto excursion. One of the girls had just bought herself a new coat, a very smart swaggy length number, of brown lapin, or some such stuff. (Obviously we were never intended to write a fashion column, so we will extricate ourselves from a position that promises to become highly involved, and leave that field free for Patty and Betty). Anyway it was a brown fur coat, and its wearer was walking up the aisle of the car feeling pretty pleased with life. From the other end of the car a drunk was steering a hazardous passage towards her, picking his way carefully over imaginary corpses. He looked up suddenly and was confronted by a brown furry object, or so it apparently appeared to him. A pleased and naive smile crossed his face. He took a step forward, and patted her affectionately on the shoulder.

"How now, brown cow?" he inquired cordially. Such a form of address would have nonplussed most people, and left them feeling pretty foolish, but this girl was apparently used to thinking on her feet. She gave him a look that would have made an icicle seem like a warm and cheerful thing in comparison, and said coldly: "Pardon me, but I happen to be the original purple cow," and swept by.

We are willing to bet that a certain gentleman signed the pledge in a great hurry the next day.

One of the girls had a birthday the other day and received a present from her young brother, aged fourteen. She opened it with some excitement, and was naturally rather surprised to find that it contained a lot of baby clothes. A curt note of explanation was attached.

"From now on all my presents to you are going to be baby clothes just so you won't be stuck when the time comes," it read.

There's that old Boy Scout training rearing its ugly head again.

CADUCEUS

C.A.M.S.I.
The Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes.

Few "Daily" readers have not heard of C.A.M.S.I., but there are many, no doubt, who may not know what it is—its aims and functions, how it is organized and what its status is on the campus. As its name implies, the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes (colloquially known as CAMSI) is a national organization and is made up of the Medical Undergraduate Societies of the individual Canadian medical schools. In the Spring of 1938, McGill sent delegates to a conference in Toronto where the Association was formed, and this Spring the McGill Medical Undergraduate Society formally voted to join this national organization. As set forth in the Constitution of C.A.M.S.I.: "The aims of this organization shall be to further the welfare and interests of Canadian medical students and Internes, to promote co-operation between medical students, and between Internes and hospital staffs, and to provide a medium for co-operation and interchange of ideas between the medical schools and hospitals of Canada, and with kindred organizations." Through the national conferences formal discussions between delegates of the various schools, enables each to benefit from the experience and innovations of the others. National Committees, distributed among the medical schools work out problems common to all schools. For instance the Internes Appointments Committee at Toronto, has drawn up and organized a Canadian Internes Board. By serving as a central agency to which prospective Internes send their list of preferences, and the hospitals their list of accepted Internes, and by the use of a uniform acceptance date, the Canadian Internes Board should eliminate the chaos now existing in the appointment of Internes who do not receive their appointment through their university.

Association of Medical Students.
While speaking of national organizations, mention should be made of the Association of Medical Students (A.M.S.)—an organization which had its origin in the "States" in 1933, and which by its example stimulated the formation of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes here. McGill sent a delegate and several observers to the National Convention of the A.M.S. last year, and will do so whenever feasible. The Journal of the Association of Medical Students is received by all McGill medical students, and is welcomed for its stimulating news of what is being done by student organizations in other schools. The next issue (the first to be received this school year) will arrive here shortly. At McGill there has always been a lively interest in the activities of the A.M.S. and the McGill CAMSI Committee has always encouraged full co-operation between the Association of Medical Students in the "States" and the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes, here.

Turning now from the national aspect of CAMSI, to the local organization, we can refer to the Constitution of the McGill Medical Undergraduate Society which when revised this Spring provided for an "Activity Committee" as follows: "The McGill Medical Undergraduate Society shall affiliate itself with the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Internes, and a Committee shall be formed to be known as the CAMSI Committee, to undertake the co-ordination, encouragement, and supervision of activities such as studies of student health, internships, curriculum, organization of a co-operative book-store, speakers bureau, and like subjects which may arise from time to time, and that this Committee be formed as follows:

Committee and Members.
"The CAMSI Committee shall be composed of one class representative elected from each of the four years, one representative from each of the sub-committees, and the President of the McGill Medical Undergraduate Society."

The members of the CAMSI Committee this year are: Leo Leveridge (Med. V) Chairman; Ronald Stephen (Med. IV) Vice-Chairman; Herbert Giberson (Med. III); David Murphy (Med. II) Treasurer; Joseph Wener (Co-operative Committee), Corresponding Secretary; Miss Miriam Miller (Speakers' Bureau), Recording Secretary; Donald Lloyd-Smith (Panel on Distribution of Medical Care); Allen Gold (Internship Committee); Publicity; Everett Cooper (Student Health Committee); John Gillik (President of the McGill Medical Undergraduate Society). The First Year Representative will be elected this week. First Year class members are urged to hand in written nominations to Class President, Alan Thompson. Ten signatures are required.

Space does not permit a detailed account of each of the CAMSI Sub-committees. Opportunity to learn more about them will be afforded in an open meeting to be held by the CAMSI Committee in the near future, probably next week. At this meeting, also, medical students interested in participating in one or more of the CAMSI activities will be able to join the sub-committees. Briefly, then the Sub-committees are:

Co-operative Committee—Under the Chairmanship of Joseph Wener, this Committee has obtained discounts on books, instruments, journals. It is negotiating savings on typewriters and microscopes. The eventual aim is the establishment, in co-operation with the rest of the campus, of a Co-operative Book-store, which will effect economies for students in all faculties. Recently it received the McGill agency for the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association, and the Canadian Public Health Journal.

Speakers' Bureau—This Committee, under the chairmanship of Lyon Lapin is organized to supply lay groups with medical student speakers on health topics. From 1-3 to one-half the students in each year have signified their willingness to give talks, and the Speakers' Bureau is under way, with several talks scheduled.

Student Health—Re-organized this year, the Committee, chaired by Everett Cooper, is particularly interested in tuberculosis among medical students. It is co-operating with Dr. F. G. Pedley, the University Health Officer, in a program for the detection of early tuberculosis, which includes skin-testing and X-rays.

Panel on Distribution of Medical Care—It is the object of this Committee to present for discussion the various systems proposed or being tried to supply more and better medical care, such as health insurance, state medicine, etc. Authorities address the Panel on some aspect of the program which the group has an opportunity for questions and discussion. Donald Lloyd-Smith was elected Chairman of this Committee.

PINZA TRIUMPHS IN DOUBLE RECITAL.

Overwhelmingly the event of the early week was the joint recital of Ezio Pinza and Marjorie Lawrence, Metropolitan Opera basso and soprano respectively, gave in His Majesty's on Monday night. It was attended by a large audience which listened discriminatingly, and accorded the great basso an ovation welcoming Miss Lawrence warmly.

It was especially rewarding to hear, in a joint recital, two singers trained in widely differing schools of voice. Mr. Pinza's whole approach to the song is Italian in feeling and technique. It makes an instrumental use of the voice, aiming at the ultimate in legato and phrasing, and in the maximum freedom of production. And here is living proof of how the principles of Italian belcanto in their best form can be applied to as special a category of the art of singing as the art-song; just in the same way as they are applied to dramatic singing.

For Mr. Pinza is now a top-flight concert singer, as one has to be to give such accounts of "Tu lo sai" by Torelli, and "Scarlatti's" Chi vuole innamorarsi as we heard on Monday evening. The business of story-telling he has at his fingertips; singing the amusing Scarlatti admonition to beware, he never labours the point, or betrays us with an over-artful delivery. Then there was his projection of "Nebbia" by Respighi, the embodiment of a sombre mood as dark and intangible as the song's subject, and the vocalism in "Fioche la Neve" (Snowflake) by Cimara, where his use of mezzo voice is fabulously beautiful, the gigantic voice losing not an atom of timbre or vibrancy in the process. There were also a couple of negro spirituals as encores, faultlessly voiced, but quite out of the spirit of the songs.

As for the rest, it was operatic, and because opera is more Mr. Pinza's province than anything else, it was the best part of his contribution. Beethoven's song "In Questa Tomba Oscura" really had nothing to do with opera, but it has more in common with operatic song or scena than with the homogeneous lyric. Contrasted with its solemnity were Leporello's catalogue song from "Don Giovanni" and as an encore, Mephistopheles's serenade from "Faust," done quite differently from the rather exaggerated French tradition of the role. Then there was an aria from Mozart's "Zauberflöte" and a lovely voicing of Handel's "Alma Mia." But the thrill of the evening was doubtless in the death scene from "Boris Godunov," charged simultaneously with such a wonderful anger and heartbreak that the effect was well-nigh overwhelming.

As we have suggested, Miss Lawrence's art stems from a different tradition—a conception and pedagogy more dramatic, but no less rigid of its kind. Wagner demanded, —and he got—a whole new technique in the art of singing, and among present-day Wagnerian interpreters, Miss Lawrence claims a special pre-eminence. Wagner, frankly, is little fun when a practically monochromatic piano undertakes to present us with orchestral sonorities and a part of more dramatic importance than even the singer's melodic line. But the singing of the Immolation scene from Gotterdammerung, which constituted Miss Lawrence's last appearance on Monday, was a thing to marvel at, so pure and resourceful is the voice, with its superhuman power and richness.

It was little wonder that the songs which prefaced this should have seemed only a preparation for what was to come. A group of three rather hackneyed Schubert items were first: "Erkling," which made not a great deal of the drama in the song, "Der Lindenbaum," done with a fine restraint and tenderness, and "Ungeud" which seemed just a little artificial. Brahms' "Der Schmelde" and a French group which comprised "Les Berceaux" by Faure and "Chant de Forgeron" by Milhaud were sensitively done in a characteristic manner.

Jean Marie Beaudet had his hands full at the piano, and acquitted himself well.

Milk Cream, and Separators.

To the Editor of the McGill Daily, Sir:—

In a column headed "Know McGill" we come upon this masterpiece of physics—it's more than a masterpiece, it's a phenomenon.

We are informed "seriously speaking," mind you, that cream, being heavier than milk, is "thrown aside" in a separator and that the lighter milk collects in the centre.

If cream floats on milk, it is because its density is less and if its density is less, it collects at the axis of the separator—not at the outside.

When you tackle such advanced technical problems, you should consult an engineer.

Sincerely,
CHARLES PERRAULT.

Red Intermediate Squad Favoured in Q.R.F.U. Final

Meet Verdun Grads At Molson Stadium Saturday

At full strength for practically the first time this year, the McGill Intermediate Football Squad take on the Verdun Grads on Saturday in a sudden death game for the Intermediate Q.R.F.U. championship at Molson Stadium. Both teams were crowned champions of their respective leagues and are certain to provide a keen battle in this engagement.

By the looks of things the Red Machine should be the favorites. They have gone through the entire schedule without a defeat and have shown themselves a fine all-round team as many of their stars have been put out of action through injuries and promotions to the Senior Team during the current campaign. However their lineup is now intact and they should romp home with the verdict. Verdun has been beaten this year so naturally they will enter the fray slightly underdogs.

Patrick at Quarter.

For the local team Jack Patrick will handle the generalship from his quarter-back position. This fellow is slated for higher company and there should not be much surprise if he is taken on by the Seniors when next fall rolls around. The kicking department will be aptly filled by Halliday and he should hold his own with the Verdun hooper. On the half-line will be three experienced players, in Bruce Russell, Cal Reid and John MacDonald, who are sure Senior material for next year. These along with Patrick are the back-bone of the team and they have striven to form an adequate pass defence for Verdun's spectacular aerial attack. No doubt the Grads will throw all caution to the winds and attempt to upset McGill through the air, as they are liable to get flattened if they try a ground attack.

This fracas will bring down the curtain in the local pigskin parade, and it will be up to the Intermediates to provide the only championship for a Red football squad for 1939. The game will get underway promptly at 2.30.

KERR'S SCHOOL TO MEET AGAIN

Football Lectures Start This February

Slow-Motion Pictures of Games to Illustrate Talks

Now that the current football season is almost over, players, past and prospective, are beginning to look forward to a new year, with its new hopes and opportunities. To this end, Doug Kerr's football school, scheduled to open early in February, will provide suitable instruction.

Not only college grid-stars attend this course, but last year several coaches were present at the lectures. Anyone interested may register, from the lowliest but ambitious water-boy to the highest light of the Intercollegiate League. High school students may also find the instruction of benefit when they next oppose a rival squad.

Held in Union.

The course, which is to be held weekly at the Union, will include every branch of the noble science of football. Strategy will be discussed generally, but no individual plays will be shown. The first lectures will concern the different aspects of line work, blocking, interfering, and taking out. Other talks will feature punting and receiving, run-backs, and plunges. The last of the series will deal with one of the most important forms of offensive play, namely passing and pass receiving.

To add to the effectiveness of the lectures, moving pictures illustrating the different forms of football were shown last year. This practice will probably be continued in the coming course. These pictures, usually in slow motion, illustrate more effectively than words the form required for kicking, pivoting, tackling, and other types of speedy movement.

Three snails were walking home one night. One suggested they stop in for a short one while they were out. They had just been served when it started to rain. So the oldest snail told the youngest to go home and get the umbrellas.

"All right," the fall guy said, "but don't touch that glass while I'm gone."

They assured him they would not. Two weeks later they were still standing there. The oldest one slapped the oak and said, "I don't care what we said, I'm going to drink him."

A voice from the doorway called back, "You do and I won't go get the umbrellas."—Fordham Ram.

The old question of the correct plural of "mongoose" was bothering a biology prof lately. He wrote to the dealer, "Please send me two mongoose."

That didn't look right so he started again and wrote, "Please send me two mongooses."

He tore that up and finally wrote, "Please send me a mongoose. It's got a friend, I'll take it."—Fordham Ram.

...daily sports... by bill cairns

Ronnie Perowne's nomination as the joint recipient of the award presented by the Montreal Sportsmen Association is welcomed most heartily in local college circles. There is no disputing Ronnie's claim to this honour. It is well deserved. Ronnie in his four years at McGill was an outstanding athlete and a credit to every team that he played on. Perhaps more outstanding than his athletic ability was the spirit with which he imbued his team mates. He never sought glory for himself and was ever ready to give the other man, whether opponent or team mate, full credit and praise. While on the field he always had command of his own actions, and inspired in the team a feeling of self confidence and determination. Such men are rare. For the years to come Ronnie's record will stand as an undeniable credit to both himself and McGill.

Western Mustangs took the Intercollegiate title as they had hoped they would. However, Queen's had them worried for nearly the whole game. Queen's, even though they did not show up here in a spectacular fashion, had the best success of any of the teams against Western. They were able to score over 60 per cent. of the points marked up against the Mustangs. The chances of the London squad having another strong team again next year seem good despite some graduations.

All that remains to be painted on the now fading football picture are lists of all-star teams and the old cry about changing the rules. The former is a natural and an artistic touch to complete the picture; but the latter only tends to change it into a surrealist's masterpiece. When one thinks of rule changes the mind swings to the "glorious" and over emphasized game of American football. The American game and its rules may be interesting and sensational for those who follow American football. But why try to change the Canadian game and make it the facsimile of another and completely different game? Let those with such ideas just sing "South of the Border" and let their unmelodious strains carry them and their ideas on the wings of their song. The Canadian game as it now stands has many good qualities and there is no reason why they should be forced into the background just for something called "unlimited interference" and etc.

It is hoped that in a week or so that it will be possible to publish in this column stories relating to the athletic organization functioning in the Universities of Queen's, Toronto and Western. In response to the suggestion set forth here several weeks ago replies have been received from both Toronto and Queen's. Western has yet to reply to the suggestion.

Several people have been asking if it will be possible to use student coupons to go to the Forum to see the freshmen play in the Junior Hockey League. In years past this has not been the case. However, this year as there are no Senior Group coupons it may be an idea to substitute the Junior games.

RUNNERS TRAIN FOR PROVINCIAL RACE SATURDAY

Cooke and Reid Will Not Run

WALBURG CHIEF THREAT

Race to Be Run Over Outremont Circuit

After their sweeping victory at Kingston last Saturday, the Red Harriers are preparing for another encounter this week-end, this time with stalwarts of Quebec province. They are competing in the Dunlop Road Race, emblematic of the Quebec Provincial Road Race Championship.

The Redmen have carried off the laurels in this fixture for the last six years, but that does not mean that they are expecting weak opposition from the 30 to 40 versatile entrants. Jack Walburg of Verdun, who placed third in last year's fixture and is a one-time Canadian Champion for the five-mile stretch is expected to lead the opposition against the Red teams.

Cooke, Hyde, Out

Lloyd Cooke is not expected to run this Saturday, being laid low with an attack of appendicitis. This should add not a little to the chances of the other teams, for it was Cooke who placed first in the Intercollegiate meet over the week-end. The Redmen will also be missing the services of Reid Hyde.

The first team, of which only four count in the scoring although six are allowed to run, will probably consist of Cowan, Berman, Peters, Kilpatrick, MacMillan and Lloyd-Smith.

The course is about five miles in length. It starts from the North Branch Y.M.C.A. and comprises a trip through Outremont going as far as Cote des Neiges Road and returning by Maplewood Avenue to the Y.M.C.A. The gallery generally follows the runners much in the same fashion as in a golf match, and the management extends a welcome to any fans who may want to see what a harrier race looks like by following the runners in automobiles.

Last Drill Wednesday.

The personnel of the two Red Teams entered will hold a last drill on Wednesday, but most of the boys will probably do a good deal of training on their own. With the exception of Lloyd Cooke, the squad's health record is perfect, and their high spirits leave nothing for the coach to desire.

The Red squad has been well experienced this year, having taken part in two meets to date. In the encounter with Dartmouth and Middlebury on the other side of the border, they placed second with only the men from Hanover ahead of them. Against the other Canadian universities at Kingston, the Redmen came through victorious. Cooke, Cowan and Berman led R.M.C., the Ontario Agricultural College and Varsity to capture the first three places and the title. With smooth-striding Lloyd Cooke on the sick list, McGill will have to work harder to net the Dunlop Trophy, but there is little doubt in local circles that they will succeed in doing it.

thermal by pope

The club car, scarred but intrepid like a veteran duellist, is back at the workshop, and the Dugling, flaunting a foot or two of new wing tip, swished down the slopes of Hill 70 all day last Sunday and reposes snugly in a barn at Nymark's Lodge, gnawing at her rudder pedals until another week-end comes along. She is flying better than ever and was not at all disturbed by being galloped across the field by novitates like an eland hurrying home to lunch.

An inquisitive crowd found its way to the movies in the Union Ballroom on Monday evening to discover what, if anything, these gliding people do—and what reason causes the workers of the hive, seen emerging from the workshop at three in the morning, to be wearing a befitting "looking-in-to-the-future" expression. We hope they went away enlightened.

The pictures taken at the site at St. Sauveur tell the fair truth about the club's field activities, and not only expose the mysteries of glider training but more intimate details as well, such as how executives spread peanut butter on their bread. "Prelude to Flight" carried matters much farther and demonstrated the ultimate in soaring flight in full sailplanes. After seeing Dewsbury, one of England's best pilots, at eleven hundred feet over a sunlit cloud bank in the beautiful soaring plane there can scarcely be any question of why one spends one's week-ends learning to fly gliders.

We suggest that the public keep an eye on this McGill Flying Club. Progress is being made with exciting persistence. The launching which—construction of which has threatened for a long time—is on its way to becoming a reality, and steps are being taken to begin another machine or arrange the purchase of one as soon as possible. This year's infusion of new blood seems to have brought with it an energy which matches that of the veterans. Setbacks such as the mishaps of two weeks ago no longer cripple flying and paralyze the optimism that prevails. Things are looking up.

We have been told that rumours are being spread by vicious malignants that the club is buckling at the knees.—It is at least to chuckle! A Sunday of grand flying, our recent dinner and movies—at both of which old members turned up who have not been associated with the club for years, the generally cheery atmosphere and the determined eagerness for progress hardly indicate an organization tottering on the edge of defeat.

We hope people have been making bets on our downfall. If so a good deal of money is going to change owners, and several people are going on a diet of fedoras fried in deep fat and garnished with a sprig of parsley.

A handsome life-guard floated lazily in the cool refreshing water, his eyes closed, his whole body relaxed and content. Suddenly he felt a soft warm arm slide lovingly around his neck, and still another glide tenderly, caressingly over his slick black hair. His eyes remained closed. It was too perfect—too romantic to stir. Slowly another arm closed about his chest. Then he languidly opened his eyes to greet the lovely maiden of his dreams. Good heavens—an octopus!—Brunswickian.

POLOISTS MEET M.A.A.A. SENIORS

Redmen Out for First Win of Season

Prepare to Defend College Crown for Seventh Consecutive Time

The Senior Poloists will tackle the strong M. A. A. A. Team tonight at the latter's pool. The game will be the second feature of a double bill program and will start at 8.30 p.m. To date the Redmen have been handed two setbacks at the hands of the M. A. A. A. boys, and tonight they will attempt to vindicate themselves. In the last game the McGillians played a hard back checking game, but they did not concentrate on their scoring attack. Tonight a combination of passing, checking and hard fighting will no doubt prove a difficult task for any opponents to beat.

Intercollegiate Prospects Good

The games in the senior city league have served as a warm up for the team before entering into the Senior Intercollegiate play-downs. For the past six years the Red Team has been successful in bringing the championship to McGill, and prospects for the continuation of the good work is very promising.

Coach Chuck Wayland has the members of the squads go through a fast workout at each practice, and all the players are rapidly getting

R.V.C. CAGERS MEET IN INTERCLASS TILTS

The R.V.C. Interclass basketball games which got off to a flying start last Friday will go into their second round this coming Friday. The second year team meets the strong M.S.P.E. squad, while the third year girls tangle with the seniors. M.S.P.E. was the winner last week over fourth year, and second year went down to defeat at the hands of the freshmen.

The teams are as follows:
2nd Year: M. Burke, S. Elkin, E. Russell, B. Brodie, M. Nutter, B. Johnson, A. Scott, J. Edwards, P. Neilson, M. Baty.
M.S.P.E.: M. Cameron, D. Hart, N. Robinson, M. Scott, A. Langley, B. Armory.

3rd Year: P. Tyndale, R. Power, N. Nicol, E. Arent, M. Gaunt, M. Rossiter, N. Drury, B. Martin.
4th Year: G. Bean, F. Flynn, D. Ramsay, I. Galarneau, F. Maxwell, M. Stewart, A. Cole.

into shape. Although the teams, both senior and junior are functioning well there is still a lack of players. Both squads have been forced to enter their games without sufficient alternatives. Any prospective polo players who have not yet turned out for practices will be more than welcome.

The following members are expected to be on hand for tonight's game: A. Finlay, S. Barra, G. Royer, E. Mahon, L. Lindsay, S. C. Issenman, and P. A. Bourne. If any of the above are unable to attend will they please communicate with Coach Wayland before 1.00 P.M. at L.A. 5623.

K. Gurd, M. Gurd, L. Redmond.
The Inter-city Basketball League will commence November 28. Entries are Mac, I and II, McGill Grads, R.V.C. and Physical Ed.

NOMINATIONS

Nominations for Faculty Representatives to the Students' Executive Council are called for.

Nominations must be in writing and signed by at least ten undergraduate students from the Faculty which the nominee is to represent.

Nominees must be students of the Junior Year of the Faculties of Arts and Science, Engineering, Medicine, Law, Dentistry, School of Commerce, Theology and the Royal Victoria College.

Nominations must be in the hands of the Secretary of the Students' Society by 2.30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 23rd.

Elections will be held by the Undergraduate Societies of the Faculties on December 5th, 1939.

G. H. FLETCHER,
Secretary.

The Earth Turns

What are the war aims of the Allies? That is the challenging question now being asked by a great many of the most loyal and patriotic citizens in the Western Democracies. It is not a question that is meant either to raise any doubt as to the justification of the present war or to undermine the morale of the people engaged in the prosecution of that war. Nor is an official answer anticipated that would lay down an exact and complete program of European political and economic reorganization that must follow the culmination of the conflict, for it is really impossible to foretell what new conditions and circumstances may have to be faced when that time comes. The incessant demand for some sort of elucidation of the Allied war aims is clearly not so much a desire to know what the Allies are going to do, as definite assurances are wanted as to what they surely ought not and must not do after a costly victory has again been finally achieved. This negative attitude we can only understand if we recognize the fact that it is now becoming increasingly clear to the suffering peoples of Western Europe that the victory of 1918 has become meaningless and empty when compared to the great tragedy of Versailles.

Although the primary and immediate aim of the Allies is quite naturally to win the war in which they are now participating, that is obviously not in itself the criterion for which they are making such great sacrifices. The winning of the war is but a tragic and wasteful undertaking at present made necessary to achieve certain ideals, and it is for these ideals which aim at raising the standard of civilization that the common people are suffering and striving in times of peace as well as in times of war. We must never attempt to justify a war by any other criterion than that it stands for the resistance of certain forces of disintegration which threaten the foundations of human society and the establishment of international law, instead of force, as the arbiter between nations. If these are the ultimate war aims of the Allies then not only the people in the Western Democracies but the whole world must know that never again will a Peace be made that will cause the enslavement of political and racial minorities under a foreign domination, that will signify a mad scramble for the rich plunder over the prostrate body of the vanquished nation, and that will contain within it the seeds of a future world conflagration.

organized for war service. And The McGill Daily prints full instructions for war-minded women, e.g. "Foot-work until foot measures within two inches of desired length. Start toe as follows: 1st decrease round Knit 8, k2..." And so the knitting needles click on through the length and breadth of Canadian colleges.

Chatter.

Ulysses students have been taking lectures to the accompaniment of the roar of cannons, as the nearby coastal defence batteries take their daily practice shots... Sadie Hawkins is still the most popular girl in Canada despite the fact that Alberta has thrown her off the campus—that is, officially. ...And so we induct a new column. ...Good bye now.

OSLER SOCIETY

Regular Meeting to Be Held Thursday Evening

The regular meeting of the Osler Society will be held in the Vice-Regal Suite of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Thursday evening, November 16 at 8.15 p.m. Two papers will be delivered on medical topics of interest. Lee C. Steeves will speak on "F. J. Shepard Surgeon" to be followed by Arnold Johnson and Parker Chesney discussing "Cyrus Weir Mitchell."

The theme of his speech was that the responsibility for the present conflict lies not with the Nazi Government and its war-like policies but with the German people and its war-like character, and he said "since we shall not permit the lamps of civilization to be snuffed out by godless fiends ready to destroy the whole history and tradition that lies behind the march of humanity, this time the task must be completed and the German people must be taught to walk in the paths of peace." This strong view is of course contrary to the present official stand of the Allies that Hitlerism is not an expression of the German people as a whole but a cruel and tyrannical despotism that must be destroyed IN THE INTERESTS OF GERMAN PROGRESS AS WELL AS WORLD PROGRESS.

If it were not for the fact that Mr. McCullagh's out and out anti-Germanism as distinct from anti-Naziism is reflective of a powerful school of thought in Western Europe that believe in the complete political dismemberment of the German State after the war, then his words would cause no more excitement than did his now defunct Leadership League. As it is we must receive these extravagant and dangerous utterances with the greatest of suspicion for it definitely smacks of the worst and most extreme type of political savagery that is characteristic of the Treaty of Versailles. What else is this reactionary thesis that the German people may have to be governed by others? but nothing more than another futile attempt to keep European society in a constant state of disruption and chaos as a result of burning racial and political antagonisms which must inevitably student organization, Bloc Universitaire, he played an important part in the direction of university life. His position as an executive member of the Association Catholique de la Jeunesse Canadienne has brought him into close contact with other French-Canadian Youth groups.

At the International Conference of Pax Romana, the world wide organization of Catholic Students, M. Johnson led the Canadian delegation of ninety members, and in the concluding sessions was elected a member of the World Executive of Pax Romana. On this committee he is one of the two representatives of North America.

M. Johnson is familiar with French-Canadian thought and life, having travelled extensively through the Province. He was born in Richmond, in the Eastern Townships, and took his Classical training at St. Hyacinthe, Quebec. His experience in student work, in C.S.A. conferences and his fluent speech make him exceptionally qualified to present the point of view of his compatriots.

RED CROSS STARTS CANADIAN CAMPAIGN

ordinary needs of peace time the advent of war has created a special need in that the Red Cross must be prepared to offer its services to the Canadian division that is now training to go overseas, and to the other divisions that are expected to follow. In addition about nine per cent of the national objective will be kept in reserve to meet any emergencies which may arise due to the state of war now in existence.

Among the functions of the Red Cross made necessary in war time are the providing of medical supplies and the maintenance of ambulance and auxiliary services. In addition the Red Cross builds and equips hospitals, recreation rooms, for Canadian soldiers and provides extra comforts for soldier patients.

can and will make substantial contributions in this direction.

Professor James was introduced by President Keith Buckland of the Undergraduates Society, and was thanked by Vice-President Stuart Wright. He assured the undergraduates that he did not intend to lose the close contact he had established with the undergraduate body and invited them to see him at any time when confronted with a problem.

Following the luncheon a trip was made to the Dew's Brewery in a specially chartered bus. A tour was made throughout the plant, including a stay in the draught room. Unlike last year, the class rooms were unchanged after the commercial law lectures, except for a few broken glasses.

pearing at the Playhouse last summer were such celebrities as Ruth Gordon, Thornton Wilder, and Dennis King.

A study of the dramatic arts is planned by Mr. Shute first by concentrating on technique, small sketches, and sections of plays, and then working up to actual performances. This will enable the student to become familiar with all stages of production, and from that he will be fitted to participate in the Club's major plays, and future theatre work.

Meetings will be twice a week, and all those members of the Club who signed up for acting, construction, or designing, are urged to be present at the first meeting, which is being held today at five o'clock in the Club room in the Union basement. Any newcomers with theatrical aspirations are also welcome.

daily paper as he pays for the latest novel. Her colleague, Marjorie Steele argued that advertising creates greater demand for a product, that demand necessitates mass production, which, in turn brings about lower prices.

Not of Best Quality

Bella Lerman, first speaker for the affirmative side, pointed out that the most advertised products are not necessarily of the best quality.

The scruples of modern advertising are unethical and unsound, declared Joan Storey, second freshette speaker. They lay stress on material rather than spiritual values; they exploit the weaknesses of human nature for purely commercial motives; and they prey upon the neurotic and the feeble-minded.

Sonya Elkin, President of the Women's Debating Society, was in the chair. The decision was determined by the audience.

The next debate of this series, between third and fourth years, will take place in the near future, after which the two winning classes will compete for the trophy that is being donated by the society.

The day is crisp and high above
The sun sailed in the sky,
My seat is on the student side,
The sun is in my eye.

In and out and all about
The masses wander past.
Touchdown? Hmmm, and where was I?
Oh goah! But things move fast.

I move to get a better view,
Ah, what's this on my seat?
It's cold and hard, I turn to look—
Just someone else's feet.

I hear a clink, as though of glass,
I wonder what it be.
On second thought I mustn't look,
Oh goodness, gracious me!

O'er the press box sets the sun,
The stands are "jumping jive."
The score? My goodness, don't ask me!
I'm glad to be alive.

I guess the game is over with
And I should wander home.
Ouch! Don't push boys that's my hat
(And this does end my poem).

Grandpa got a monkey gland,
And it drove us all to tears,
For he whispered things in Grandma's ears
That she hadn't heard for years.

We have just heard of a Freshette who claims to know her arithmetic. She thinks twice dirty is sixty. —Gateway preceding year's graduates in medicine of McGill and University of Manitoba, who were then interning. They were asked many details regarding their internship of interest to prospective interns. The results have been tabulated and are available in Miss Mudge's office.

Much more could be written about each of these committees, and perhaps their activities may serve as the basis for future columns.

On the foundations already well laid, may be built a student organization of unlimited usefulness, for with co-operation (in its widest sense) as an ideal there is no end to what may be accomplished.
